

WHAT IF...

Flag Football Becomes the Standard Way of Playing Football Until High School?

High school athletes could enter tackle football with fewer injuries from collisions, like concussions.

Reduced injury concerns could encourage more participation.

Safety-conscious parents and children could be more likely to participate.

Insurance and equipment costs could be lower for schools and sports programs.

Skills learned could prepare athletes for tackle football and other sports.

FLAG FOOTBALL provides opportunities for kids to work as a team and build leadership skills just as well as tackle football and other sports. Well-trained coaches can create a safe and supportive sporting environment for youth.
